Juanita Phillips

Juanita Phillips has been exploring the world her whole career, as both an international news presenter and a keen traveller. She first left Australia as a 21-year-old journalist, backpacking around the world solo for three years. Her adventures included hitchhiking from Istanbul to London, being stranded in Cairo with no money after being robbed, working as a cocktail waitress in San Francisco's Haight Ashbury district, and trekking the remote foothills of Kashmir. Her 30-year career as a television news presenter gave her a new way to experience the world, bringing stories of global significance to an audience of millions. She lived for five years in London, anchoring international news programs for the BBC and CNN, before returning to Australia for a 22-year career with the Australian Broadcasting Corporation as the presenter of its prime time 7pm News. Now that her children are grown, Juanita has returned to what she loves best - seeing the world from outside the TV studio, this time in style and hosting like-minded others.

“ Travelling alone as a woman was challenging at times, and rather lonely. I missed the company of others to share the amazing experiences I was having.

A woman wearing a vibrant green saree with a pink border and a pink blouse is walking away from the camera down a long, ornate hallway. The hallway features intricate carvings on the walls and a ceiling with a repeating diamond pattern. At the end of the hallway, there is a large, arched doorway with a decorative archway above it. The lighting is warm and golden, suggesting late afternoon or early morning. The woman is carrying a brown shoulder bag and a small purple handbag.

“I first went to India in my early 20s, while I was backpacking around the world solo. Of all the countries I visited, India was the one I fell in love with. The colours, the sounds, the sheer unexpected beauty of it - India won me, heart and soul. I trekked the foothills of Kashmir, rode a camel for three days, practised yoga in Varanasi near the mighty Ganges, and wandered through the grand palaces of Maharajahs. I spent three months there, crossing the vast country by train, and it was one of the formative experiences of my life. But I'll be honest, it was tough! Travelling alone as a woman was challenging at times, and rather lonely. I missed the company of others to share the amazing experiences I was having.

I remember being on an old bus as it rattled through the desert of Rajasthan at sunset, marvelling at the magnificent colours and thinking: "I'm going to come back here one day, and do this all again - with friends, and in style!" So when Luxe Tours offered me the opportunity to see India in five-star luxury, with a group of like-minded women, I didn't hesitate for a second. It seemed like destiny, the fulfilment of a promise I made to myself many years ago. I can't wait to share this life-changing cultural experience with you. See you in Delhi!"

Of particular note, we enjoy the landmark Oberoi Amarvilas, achingly close to the Taj Mahal itself and known to be one of the world's top 50 hotels; the incredible Samode Haveli, a study in traditional art and décor, and thus a destination in its own right; and RAAS Jodhpur, an innovative boutique hotel dominated by the stunning 15th century Meherengarh Fort looming magnificently above the courtyard and the surrounding plains beyond.

Henna to Holy Meals

Opportunities to participate in myriad cultural experiences, with henna artistry, yoga, turban honours, saree evenings and traditional sweets ceremonies some of the wonderful encounters available to our guests, as well as visiting the 'mega kitchen' of Gurudwara Sikh Temple, where volunteers hand out over 100,000 meals per day.

A decorative border on the left and right sides of the page features vibrant, colorful Peruvian textiles, likely alpaca or wool, with intricate geometric and traditional patterns in shades of red, yellow, blue, and green.

A journey to Peru & Chile

with Juanita Phillips

1 - 13 August 2025

The rhythm of South America is irresistibly seductive, while each country within this captivating continent also dances to its very own beat. On the western coast, the ancient land of Peru retains the mystery of the Incas, with its mountains and valleys enfolding archaeological wonders and Andean communities that beg to be discovered, even as its bustling capital offers up coveted cuisine and architectural chic. Further south, Chile is a breath of fresh air in its dynamic capital of Santiago, the stunning vibrancy and sophistication of its coastal cities, and of course, the ultimate, bucket-list natural adventure that is Patagonia.

This expertly curated Journey with Juanita Phillips allows a select group of likeminded travellers to access an awe-inspiring breadth of experience and exploration in 13 days, with all the luxury inclusions and meticulous detail that one would expect from a tour of this calibre. Our guests enjoy individual welcomes and private transfers from the airport, enviable access to local communities and specialty hosts, and wonderful transfers on famously luxe trains, charming funiculars and, of course, by foot on your choice from a range of hikes, for all fitness levels, through jaw-dropping landscapes.

Every accommodation on this itinerary is exceptional, hand picked by LTR (Luxury Touring by Revelry) to embroider further luxury and unsurpassed hospitality into your experience. As with every journey we offer, all activities and accommodations have been sourced in keeping with our commitment toward responsible and ethical travel. Particularly, Juanita Phillips herself has personally ensured that each stop on this LUXE Travel for Women itinerary allows guests to engage meaningfully with our host destinations. This necessarily means that places on this tour are strictly limited, so guests are invited to express interest in being a part of this exciting Journey with Juanita Phillips as soon as possible. I'd always planned to have a grand adventure in South America, but life had a habit of getting in the way. Like so many women, I got caught up in a whirlwind of career and children and home-making which kept me busy for decades. I could never seem to find a travelling companion who was free at the same time, and who shared the same dreams of climbing Macchupichu and seeing the natural wonder of Patagonia. And by the time life finally slowed down and I had the freedom to rediscover myself, I'd lost the confidence to travel on my own in unfamiliar territory. The opportunity to experience the natural beauty and vibrant culture of Peru and Chile - and to share it with a small community of female travellers - is a dream come true.

And what really excites me about the carefully curated program that LTR offers is the cultural immersion - meeting local women, experiencing the local markets and nightlife, and walking the same ancient trails as the Incas. Of course, doing it all in luxury is a bonus! Our journey together promises to be a magical once-in-a-lifetime adventure.

Come join me!

OK, no surprises here - my all-time Number One bucket list item is going on a wildlife safari in Africa. I know I'm not the only one! Is there any travel experience more iconic than seeing wild animals like lions and rhino up close in their natural habitat? Or witnessing the majesty of the Victoria Falls? But travel is not just about ticking off the bucket list and "doing" the sights. It's about having life-affirming experiences that enrich our time here on earth, and connect us to our fellow humans. What a great privilege that is. Like you, I'm much more aware these days of the need to travel ethically at a time when the planet needs all our love. One thing that impressed me about Luxe Tour's Journey to Southern Africa is the emphasis on treading gently in this precious eco-system. As a journalist, I'm also super excited to be guiding our private conversation with two important South African women (including Nelson Mandela's private secretary) about the events that have shaped this part of the world. Now THAT'S something you won't find anywhere else (and I guarantee you'll find it fun, informative and inspiring). For me, this journey to Southern Africa embodies the freedom and adventure I'm seeking at this stage in my life. I'd be honoured to experience it with you.

Unprecedented access to sights is yours, such as unlimited access to Victoria Falls while staying at the grand The Royal Livingstone, a fast track straight up Table Mountain, or gliding in a silent riverboat safari to view the world's largest elephant population up close in Botswana.

Juanita is especially enthusiastic to share this once-in-a-lifetime LUXE Travel for Women experience with a select group of similarly minded travellers. As always, LTR has worked hard to ensure that all elements of this journey are ethically sourced, with an eye to giving back to the communities and treading softly within the delicate ecosystems we visit.
